

FIGHT TO OBTAIN MEXICAN REPORTS

Senate Will Demand Information State Department Wants Kept Secret

REBELS REFUSE MEDIATION

President Wilson Angry at Jingoism in Congress Because of This Development

WASHINGTON, Aug. 2.—How far the senate of the United States may go in demanding from the state department information on Mexico which the diplomatic end of the government does not wish to disclose will be determined Monday when, by agreement of Minority and Majority Leaders, the Fall resolution

Shut Ambassador Up
WASHINGTON, Aug. 2.—Flood of the house foreign affairs committee today confirmed the report that President Wilson objected to having Ambassador Henry Lane Wilson appear before the committee. The president gave Flood to understand that he considered the American ambassador a "bitter partisan" of President Huerta. That peremptory "silence" orders have been given the ambassador was reported at the capitol today. Directions have been issued from the state department, it was said that the ambassador shall give no more interviews on Mexican affairs.

concerning Mexican outrages against Americans will be taken up. A score of amendments will be offered. The original resolution calls for the names and locations of all American citizens in Mexico who have been imprisoned, injured or robbed during the revolutionary period, together with an estimate of the financial loss suffered.

Wilson After Jingoism
The friction between the administration and the jingo inclined congressional representation is becoming acute. President Wilson believes that the disposition exhibited by certain members to "crowd the limelight" in the face of the present crisis is embarrassing the efforts to restore order in Mexico. And it was reported today that if there is not a change in methods soon the president may be forced to make a public statement saying so and placing the responsibility.

The recurrence of the suggestion by certain senators and representatives that the embargo on arms be removed, and the rival factions furnished all of the appliances necessary to engage in a war of supremacy and extermination, is complicating matters. It is known that certain of the revolutionary leaders who leaned toward mediation have now changed their minds. The reason is the belief that they may be permitted to secure arms and ammunition which are badly needed.

Carranza Refuses Mediation
EL PASO, Tex., Aug. 2.—Governor Venustiano Carranza, head of the northern constitutionalists, issued a brief statement today declaring that under no circumstances would the rebels accept any proposal for mediation, or a truce between the warring factions in Mexico made by the United States.

Carranza expressed the most friendly feeling for Americans and declared he would do everything in his power to afford them protection from guerrilla bands, but said he could accept no mediation offer.

NEW YORK, Aug. 2.—Although he admitted that his pocket had been picked, Ambassador Henry Lane Wilson today denied that the men who escaped with his purse containing personal funds, obtained any state papers or other documents of value. The ambassador was robbed last night in the Pennsylvania station, where he had gone with two women friends who took a train for the homes in Long Island.

GIRL ALLEGES ATTACK

CHICAGO, Aug. 2.—Charges that three men kidnapped her, dragged her to a club room where 25 men and boys congregated, and kept her prisoner there all night, were made to the police today by 16 year old Frances Kasper, an orphan girl. The girl is at the juvenile home under the care of a physician. She dragged herself to the home of a friend after the attack and is in a serious condition. Warrants were issued.

STORM DAMAGES BOSTON

BOSTON, Aug. 2.—Great damage was done about Boston by an electrical storm which broke early today and continued throughout the early hours. Three churches, a school house and several dwellings were struck by lightning. Fire and police signals were put out of order, water mains were smashed and the streets strewn with great branches torn from trees.

New Weather Chief Has Big Record

Charles F. Marvin.

Professor Charles F. Marvin, the new chief of the U. S. weather bureau, has been in the government service since 1884 and has gained a very wide reputation in the scientific world. He is the inventor of many instruments used by the bureau. He has represented the department of agriculture at a number of important meteorological congresses and has written extensively on the subject of weather investigations. He is a native of Ohio.

VISITOR HERE SEES HIS ELOPING WIFE

James Wilson of Indianapolis Sees Spouse Whirl by Court House in Red Auto

HE PURSUES HER WITHOUT RESULT

Calls in Cops to Get Back $15,000 She Took When She Went with Friend

After searching three years for his wife, whom he claims left his home in Indianapolis for another man, taking, incidentally, $15,000 he had saved, James Wilson, in La Crosse by chance today, caught a glimpse of his erring spouse whirling through the streets in an auto, accompanied by the man he says stole her.

Wilson, according to the story told Police Chief John Webber, was sitting in the court house park when a big red touring car passed. His wife, he says, was in the front seat and by her side was the man who entered his home in the guise of a friend and won his wife.

Wilson was so positive of the identification that he made an effort to catch the machine. His wife, he says, saw him and the auto dashed at full speed to Main street, then towards the river. He lost sight of it at Third and Main streets.

He immediately rushed to the North American Telegraph company and telephoned the police. Later he went to the police station and told his tale to Chief Webber.

Wilson claims that he now works as a switchman, his resources being exhausted when his wife drew the $15,000 from an Indianapolis bank.

NEGRO WITHDRAWS

WASHINGTON, Aug. 2.—President Wilson today withdrew the nomination of Adam E. Patterson, the Okla. negro named last week to be register of the treasury. In taking this action, the president said it was at Patterson's own request. In his place the president today nominated Gabe E. Parker an Oklahoma Indian. Patterson's nomination raised a grave question in the senate. He was nominated at the request of Senator Gore, Vardaman, Hoke Smith, Tillman and other southern senators personally protested to the president against his confirmation.

TO HEAR REBELS

WASHINGTON, Aug. 2.—Agreement that representatives of the constitutionalists and all other Mexican factions now in the city shall be heard by it next Wednesday was made by the senate foreign relations committee today. It was expected that American interests injured by the present troubles in the republic will also present arguments at the hearing.

DEATH LIST NINE

CINCINNATI, Aug. 2.—The death list in the Lagoon park motordrome horror reached nine today with the death of Michael Carney, of Lima, Ohio, at St. Elizabeth's hospital in Covington, Ky. Two other victims of the accident are believed to be dying. They are Mrs. Matilda Buchman and Orville Hart.

FAMILIES MOVE OUT OF CENTER

School Census Shows that Movement of Population Is Away from City's Heart

EIGHT WARD HOLDS THE PALM

Has Just 900 Children of School Age More Than the Twelfth; Twice as Many as Most

The movement of population away from the center of the city is attested by the school census figures, which were made public today by Superintendent L. P. Benezet of the city schools. The wards which showed the largest increase of children between the ages of four and twenty were the seventh, fourteenth and sixteenth, all of which are out toward the bluffs. A corresponding increase was found in the wards on the extreme north end of the north side. Mr. Benezet explains this by the statement that families are rapidly moving their homes away from the city's center.

Number 9,603

The actual number of children of school age in the city is 9,603, according to the figures gathered by Professor H. G. Hayden, principal of the Franklin school. Professor Hayden took the census. This figure is a loss of 141 since the 1912 census.

Mr. Benezet explains the loss by declaring there was an unusual number of 19 year old persons last year, 986, to be exact. These could not be included this year, and there are 529 four year olds this year to take their places. There is a loss of 400, and so Mr. Benezet considers that the census has in reality grown.

Each school child will bring the city a little over $2.60 in state school aid. The total amount this year received by the city will be a little more than last year, as the pro rata has been increased.

Ten Show Increases

One ward, the second, has exactly the same number of school children as in 1912. Ten showed increases. These are the third, fourth, sixth, seventh, tenth, eleventh, fourteenth, sixteenth, twentieth and twenty-first. The others showed losses. The south end of the north side, in the fifth, fifteenth and nineteenth wards, lost heavily owing to the fact that a number of families moved west from that section.

The ward with the fewest school children is the twelfth, which has just 900 less than the largest, the eighth. The figures are 166 and 1,066. The eighth ward has more than twice as many school children as any ward except the eighteenth, eleventh and ninth. The ninth ward has just a few over half as many children as the eighth.

KILL MEXICAN OUTLAW

EL PASO, Texas, Aug. 2.—An El Paso paper today printed the copy of a telegram from General Francisco Villa, who reports the execution of "El Mocho" Moreno, the Mexican outlaw, whose men terrorized American lumber camps in Chihuahua in July, killed Ben Griffin, an American farmer, and seriously wounded Alfred Parks, a butcher. Villa wired that Moreno was placed in front of a firing squad of 12 men and shot to death at the command of Col. Juan M. Medina, former mayor of Juarez.

SAYS RING MUST END

WASHINGTON, Aug. 2.—That the control and domination of the banking business of the United States must be surrendered by a half dozen men to the public was the essence of a circular letter issued by Chairman Owen of the senate banking and currency committee today in reply to question from country banks as to the advantages they would draw from the federal reserve system.

MRS. WOLFORD DEAD

DIES AT LOCAL HOSPITAL FROM SHOCK OF OPERATION AND OTHER COMPLICATIONS

The first of a family of nine children to be called by death, Mrs. C. A. Wolford, 1616 Vine street, died at a local hospital Friday night. Mrs. Wolford was operated upon last Sunday afternoon for gall stones and the shock of the operation together with other complications caused her death. Mrs. Wolford was 46 years of age, having been born on New Year's day. She is survived by her husband, one son and one daughter, John and Mrs. Ray D. Stewart of Chicago.

Six brothers, two sisters and her mother also mourn her loss. Surviving brothers and sisters are: Henry, Herman, Louis, Emil and William Friese of La Crosse; Oscar Friese of Winona; Mrs. J. J. Toeller of La Crosse; and Mrs. E. H. Kinder of Aberdeen, S. D. The funeral will be held from the home Monday afternoon at 2:30. Rev. William E. Johnson of Christ church will officiate.

MILLIONS IN GEMS AT FAIRIES' BALL

Mrs. Stuyvesant Fish Gives $70,000 Entertainment for Newport Crowd

500 GUESTS ARE IN COSTUMES

Some of Best Known of Social Leaders Attend in Daring Gowns

NEWPORT, R. I., Aug. 2.—If Hans Anderson could have peeked into the enclosed grounds about Mrs. Stuyvesant Fish's magnificent Newport residence here about dawn today, he might have been converted to absolute belief in the existence of the fairies he conjured up in his writings to delight little folk.

When the sun broke over the Fish grounds, he fell upon the most spectacular and lavish affair Newport has witnessed. The event was the much talked of fairy tale or Mother Goose ball given at Crossways, to the Newport and Narragansett society colonies. Jewels worth $12,000,000 sparkled and scintillated on the necks and arms of the "fairies" and the costumes and decorations represented an outlay of $65,000 additional. It is estimated that $5,000 was spent for the supper, served at midnight and just preceding the "Pick and Puck" dance that lasted until daybreak.

500 in Costume

There were 500 guests all arrayed to represent the characters in fairy tales. There was Little Red Riding Hood, Little Miss Muffet, Blue Beard, Snow White, Queen of Hearts, Beauty and the Beast—in fact they were all "among those present." Mrs. Reginald C. Vanderbilt was Snow White. Mrs. Herman Oelrichs was Mother Goose. Miss Edythe Deacon and Mrs. Arthur Scott Burden went dressed as "The Brothers" in very short and very tight knee trousers. Miss Margaret Caperton appeared as Fatima in a Turkish harem tunic. Because of the recent robberies at Narragansett Pier in which a quarter of a million dollars in gems have been stolen, the Crossways was surrounded by a cordon of private detectives and special guards.

Mrs. Fish, the hostess, was arrayed as Queen of the Fairies. She wore a gown of silver hue trimmed with rhinestones and spangles. In her hair she wore a silver star fitted with an electrical device, and carried a wand in which twinkling electric lights emphasized the brilliance of the jewels which studded her costume. Laces of diamonds and rhinestones and buckles of sapphires and diamonds were on her slippers.

More than 10,000 electric lights and lines of goblin heads and dragon shapes, were draped about the grounds and among the flower beds.

CONTEST WINNER

Miss Barbara Novey, 234 South Sixth street, was the winner of last week's "Guess Who's Here" contest, the subject of which was Thurston Owen.

Week Financial

NEW YORK, Aug. 2.—Financial London kept holiday. Continental stock exchanges merely drifted, and our own market was purely nominal. Changes in prices were fractional only and no important movement occurred. At home the most noteworthy fact in the various week end statistics was the continued increase over 1912 in western bank clearings. This is a partial reflection of the huge wheat movement. Chicago estimates on the actual winter wheat yield have been so far increased with progress of the harvest as to suggest the possibility of a record breaking total wheat crop.

Two incidents of this week, affecting the relation of the government and the financial situation have shown with unusual clearness, first, how not to do, and second, how to do it. Government bonds declined sharply on the market. The finance minister of the United States publicly declared that the fall was due to a conspiracy of New York banks. Waiting the question either of accuracy or of propriety in this action, the conclusion of all experienced people was that the market for government securities has been injured by it. This was so for two reasons—that so unprecedented an action would be taken by many holders of such securities as evidence of a desperate situation, and that, even where this was not inferred, a desire to get free from connection with a market, where such accusations were flying, would have been instilled.

Weekly Bank Statement

NEW YORK, Aug. 2.—The weekly actual bank statement, issued today showed the following changes: Surplus, decrease $1,949,600. Loans, increase $2,890,000. Specie, decrease $146,000. Legals, decrease $3,885,000. Deposits, decrease $7,658,000. Circulation, increase $166,000. Surplus reserve $26,208,100.

AUTOS FROM MONTANA TO CAPITAL IN AID OF EQUAL SUFFRAGE CAUSE

Miss Jeannette Rankin.

A prominent figure in the suffrage demonstration at Washington Thursday was Miss Jeannette Rankin, state president of the Montana Woman Suffrage association and field secretary of the national association. Miss Rankin motored all the way from Montana to the national capital, soliciting enroute signatures to petitions to congress asking for the passage by the national legislature of the proposed equal suffrage amendment.

ALLEGED BLACKMAIL PLOT IN ORLEANS

U. S. Special Agent and Mexican Rebel Representative Held for Extortion

NEW ORLEANS, La., Aug. 2.—G. Raymond Mathews, special agent of the United States department of justice; J. L. Mott, his assistant, and Ernesto Fernandez Y. Artega, representative here of the constitutional junta, were arrested here early today, charged with blackmail.

The men were taken into custody on complaint of Emmanuel Castillo Brito, former governor of the state of Campeche, Mexico. Brito charged that one of the trio extorted $500 from him by displaying a telegram purporting to come from Washington, signed "McReynolds," and ordering his arrest.

Brito said that he employed private detectives who marked $500 in bills and arranged for a meeting last night. Assistant Chief of Detectives Daniel Monney led a squad of officers who made the arrests.

STRIKE HALTS ORE MOVING

SUPERIOR, Aug. 2.—It was estimated that 500 men, workers on the Allouez ore docks, were on strike today following the accident Thursday night that cost the lives of three workmen and injured thirty. The strikers claim that conditions which caused collision of the ore trains must be corrected before they will return to work. During yesterday 11 trains of ore reached the docks. As many more arrived today and they are still unloaded, while the big ore boats, bound for lake ports to the south, are held up.

ALLIES WANT MUCH

WOULD LEAVE BULGARIA WITH LITTLE MORE LAND THAN WHEN SHE OPENED UP BALKAN WAR

LONDON, Aug. 2.—Dispatches from Bucharest today said that the Balkan peace delegates there were disposed to renew the five days' armistice, as all of the belligerents are almost exhausted, and the peace conference bids fair to be long drawn out.

The allies in their demands presented to the conference would leave Bulgaria with a coast line on the Aegean of only thirty miles. They also demand an indemnity. Roumania also demands territory from Bulgaria. Should the terms be accepted, Bulgaria will emerge from two wars, lasting ten months, poorer in purse but little larger in area than when she went into them.

A representative from St. Petersburg today said that official Russian denial had been issued declaring the rumors that the czar intended taking steps against Turkey. It was stated that Russia wants to avoid any isolated attempt to coerce the Turks.

SEND GUNBOAT TO VENEZUELA

U. S. S. Des Moines and a Party of Bluejackets Take H. F. Lennart to Legation at Laguayra

WASHINGTON, Aug. 2.—The state department prepared today for definite action in Venezuela. Henry F. Tennant of the bureau of Latin American affairs, will sail on Monday on the United States cruiser Des Moines from Brunswick, Ga. He will go direct to Laguayra, where he will assume the secretaryship of the American legation. He will take charge of American interests pending the appointment of the new minister to Venezuela which is expected early next week.

The Des Moines will not leave bluejackets in Venezuela except under extraordinary circumstances. She has enough bluejackets on board to take a landing party may be made up if necessary.

This government has very little official information regarding the Venezuelan revolution. The first intimation that Castro was leading the movement to regain control of the country which exiled him came with the news of his landing here.

WHO OWNS WEDDING COSTS

KALAMAZOO, Mich., Aug. 2.—Whose property are the costs made at a wedding, husband's or wife's? This was the problem which Judge Glenn N. Fallis decided today but he said he would probably render a decision before midnight. The question presented in a suit brought by Mrs. Joseph Kovach against her husband. She is seeking money and other possessions which she claims were given to her at the time of her marriage but that they are now in her husband's possession.

BISHOP SCHINNER LEAVES

MILWAUKEE, Aug. 2.—After stealing away from his parishioners and members of his household in order to avoid the sorrow of leaving-taking, Right Rev. A. J. Schinner, until recently bishop of the Superior Roman Catholic diocese, arrived in Milwaukee today. At the end of a month's rest he expects to become an independent missionary.

CO-OPERATIVE ICE COMPANY PLAN TO FIGHT TRUST HERE

Deal On to Form Corporation Among the Grocers, Butchers and Saloonmen of La Crosse

WOULD PURCHASE BIG HOUSE

If the Proposition Goes Through Storage Plant of E. H. Derr May Be Used by New Concern

MOVE WELCOMED BY ICE MEN?

People's Ice Company Head Says Prices Are Not High; Hopes Consumers Will Enter Business

As a result of an alleged combine by local ice men resulting in exorbitant charges for ice a plan is under way here among retail grocers, butchers and saloonmen to form a co-operative ice company.

In fact, articles of incorporation are being drawn and it is probable that the deal which includes the purchase of an immense house, will be agreed to within a few days.

Local ice men deny that prices are exorbitant and George H. Warringer, proprietor of the People's Ice & Fuel company today declared that he would welcome the plan for an independent company.

"The prices this year," said Mr. Warringer today, "are about the same as last year. We have raised the price of ice to butchers about twenty-five cents per ton and it is also true that we are charging a little more in the southern section of the city. That is because of the long haul through deep sand and over poor streets."

Ice men Welcome Move
Mr. Warringer admitted that he had heard of the co-operative project and added that his only hope is that the grocers, butchers and saloonmen go into the ice business. "What they would experience would more than prove our assertions that prices are not exorbitant," he said. "We are not getting rich at an alarming rate in this business and they will find it out if they enter the field."

The plan that is now under way is to form a corporation with butchers, grocers and saloonmen as stockholders. Men subscribing for stock in the company will take amounts in comparison to the amount of money they will expend for ice the coming year.

To Purchase Derr Ice House
It is admitted that the deal includes the purchase of the immense ice house of E. H. Derr, and that the plan provides for the letting of a contract for putting up and delivering the product.

Mr. Derr today admitted that the plan was being worked out but declined emphatically to discuss charges that the local ice men were asking unreasonable prices for their product.

The Plagues of Egypt, Ps. cv:23-26. (Compare Ex. vii:8-xi:10.) Read Ex. vii:11.

Golden Text—Whoever shall exalt himself shall be humbled; and whosoever shall humble himself shall be exalted. Mt. xlii:12.

(1.) Verse 23—What were the circumstances which brought Israel into Egypt?

(2.) What proportion of historic events have been brought about by sin?

(3.) Would you say or not, and why, that sin is a force or a law through which God brings things to pass the same is he does through other laws?

(4.) How long did Israel sojourn in Egypt?

(5.) Verse 24—To what extent did Israel multiply in Egypt? (See Ex. i:9; Gen. xlviii:14.)

(6.) What is the evidence that God always makes his people stronger than their enemies?

(8.) In what sense are we to understand that God caused Pharaoh or the Egyptians to hate Israel and to deal subtly with them?

(9.) Would it be wrong or right, and why, to think that Pharaoh's hatred and jealousy of Israel was a part of God's plan to get his people out of Egypt?

(10.) Verse 26—There seems to be no doubt that God raised up Moses and Aaron to deliver Israel out of Egypt, but is there any evidence, and if so what, indicating that God has raised up every man for some special work?

(11.) Is there any reason to think that all true Christians are doing the work which God planned them for, whether they are conscious of it or not? Give your reasons.

(12.) Verse 27—What were the circumstances which made it necessary for God to send plagues, here called "signs" and "wonders," among the Egyptians?

(13.) Verse 28—How many plagues did God send and which of them in numerical order was the plague of darkness? (See Ex. x:22, 23.)

(14.) How long did the darkness last and what were the attending circumstances?

(15.) In what way does God send darkness to sinners in these days?

(16.) Verse 29—What are the facts concerning turning their "waters into blood" and which of the plagues in order was this? (See Ex. vii:20-21.)

(17.) Verse 30—What is the correct story of the plague frogs and which of the plagues was it? (See Ex. viii:5, 6.)

(18.) Verse 31—In what order did the plagues of flies and lice come and what were the attendant circumstances? (See Ex. viii:16, 17, 20-24.)

(19.) Verses 32-33—Which in order was the plague of hail and what did it result in? (See Ex. ix:22-25.)

(20.) Verses 34-35—Which in order was the plague of locusts and what was the effect of this plague upon Pharaoh? (See Ex. x:13-17.)

(21.) Verse 36—What were some of the awful and dramatic circumstances in connection with the death of all the firstborn in Egypt?

Trinity Church to Have

School for Organists. Till now there has been in all America no school for the instruction of organists and choirmasters to serve in Episcopal churches, where the music is most difficult, and no organists' school of any kind save a small private venture that was established in New York three or four years ago. The increase in the number of expensive organs of late years has been enormous, yet organists have been compelled to study under other organists, as lawyers and physicians used to be trained. Many of the best organists in America came from England.

Trinity church, New York, takes the initial steps this fall to establish the American School of Church Music. Private persons have furnished funds, and the parish will utilize its great organs, of which it has four, and some of its famous choirmasters. It is the hope that in time there will come into existence an American school that will compare with Oxford in England.

A Matter of Wages. The teacher was giving a test of value of foreign money in America. When it was little Harry's turn, she asked:

"Harry, how much is a guinea worth in this country?"

Harry smiled and answered: "A dollar and a half a day."

Stolen Gems from Humor's Crown.

Unequal Punishment

Two boys who managed to be rather unruly in school so exasperated their teacher that she requested them to remain after hours and write their names 1,000 times. They plunged into the task. Some fifteen minutes later one of them grew uneasy and began watching his companion in disgrace. Suddenly the first one burst out with despair between his sobs and said to the teacher:

"Tain't fair, mum! His name's Rush and mine's Schluttermeyer."

A Lost Sermon

A local preacher once drove in a cab to the village church to preach. Upon his arrival he was somewhat disconcerted to find that the congregation only consisted of one man. Remembering, however, that a well known minister had on one occasion preached to one man and converted him, he decided to give him the benefit of his discourse.

At the close of a long sermon he shook hands with his congregation and asked him if the sermon was too long.

"Oh, it makes no difference to me," was the reply. "I'm your cabman."

An Orphan With Parents

An amusing story was told recently at the annual meeting of the actors' orphanage fund by Sir J. Forbes Robertson, who said that a sturdy youth once accosted Lady Bancroft with a long, whining story. "Oh, lady, won't you help me?" he said. "I'm only a poor orphan."

Lady Bancroft, with her quick wit, looked up sharply and asked: "Where do your father and mother live?"

"Up this 'ere court, lady," was the prompt response.

THE TRIBUNE'S Daily Short Story

BURIED TREASURE

By KATE CLEVES

Copyright, 1913, by the McClure Newspaper Syndicate.

"No sir, she doesn't care a hang!" muttered Anthony Davis as he swung along the road toward home.

"Not a hang!" repeated Anthony after a long silence. He was still thinking of Maud Frary—in fact his mind had refused to harbor any other subject since their engagement had been broken.

That was all. Today Anthony had walked over to Roseville hoping to catch a glimpse of Maud. He had caught the glimpse—it was more than enough to turn him about and send him flying homeward. Seated in Dexter Ford's handsome motor car Maud had turned her lovely eyes and vouchsafed her former lover the coldest inclination of her head.

"Not a hang!" roared Anthony for the third time and he turned off the main road and sat down in the shade of a giant oak.

Anthony Davis was bookkeeper in the Torreyville bank, and he would have owned a motor car had he not been saving up his money to marry Maud Frary. Happily, he was fond of walking and these five mile tramps from Torreyville to Roseville were usually undertaken in a spirit of enthusiasm. When he took Maud out he always hired a horse and carriage from the livery stable, but, nowadays, girls seemed to prefer the showier and more speedy transportation afforded by glittering motor cars.

Well, if Maud wanted to marry Dexter Ford and his motor car Anthony didn't care. He dropped his face in his hands and groaned.

"What's the matter—sick?" asked a juvenile voice.

Anthony dropped his hands instantly and lifted a reddened face to the curious inspection of a chubby little boy who carried a diminutive spade over one shoulder, and whose blue eyes wore a look of deep concentration.

"Hullo, there," said Anthony pleasantly. "Where you going, young man?"

The boy pointed a fat thumb over his shoulder.

"There's something I'm going after," he said, importantly, and then, eyeing Anthony sharply, he went on: "You can come along, too, if you want to: the woods look kind of dark over there."

"Well, I can spare a little time—it's Saturday half holiday and there isn't anything else to do."

"Maybe you'll be glad you came!" comforted the boy, as Anthony got up and shook himself. "Say, you're Maud Frary's beau, ain't you?"

Anthony reddened to his ears. "No, I'm not, worse luck," he muttered. "What is your name, youngster?"

"Finney Deale—you can call me Fin if you want to, most everybody does. Come along, sir," Fin led the way through the woods along a faintly defined path.

"Where are you going, Fin?" "Up to the little hollow near the pine knoll."

"What are you going to do with that spade, Fin? Bury your dead dog?"

"Haven't got any dog, and he isn't dead either, and I haven't got a dead cat. I'd like to have a dog, though—maybe father'll buy me one some day," returned Fin sturdily as he mounted the little knoll slippery with pine needles and slid delightfully down the other side into the hollow.

Anthony reached his side. "What you going to do, Fin?" he asked. "Dig for buried treasure," answered Fin solemnly.

"What makes you think you will find it here?"

"I saw her bury it," was Fin's reply as he scraped away the pine needles from one particular spot.

"Saw her bury it?"

"Yes, I suppose it was jewels and diamonds and pieces of eight and Spanish bunnions, oh, I read all about it in the 'Boys Own Treasure Book.' Jakle Loomis lent it to me, and when I saw her down here on her hands and knees burying something I thought to myself 'she's found—the treasure—where, it's hot!'—and she's putting it back again because her conscience is troubling her!"

Anthony laughed heartily. "And I suppose your conscience will trouble you till you return it to its hiding place."

"Not on your life!" ejaculated Fin. "It's all right for a man to keep buried treasure, but with women it's different. I shall give her some of it—some jewels, maybe a bunch of rings or some Spanish bunnions," he added vaguely.

Just as Anthony has established a relationship between "Spanish bunnions" and gold bullion, Fin uttered a wild shriek of delight.

"I've struck it," he cried excitedly, clashing away at the small hole he had made; "she couldn't dig very deep, only being a girl, and she was crying so hard all the time I don't believe she could see what a teeny little hole she had made! I expect she was crying because she had to put it back on account of her conscience—I'm glad I ain't got a conscience," he added hardily as he put his fingers down and pulled out a little box wrapped in white lace.

Anthony put up a protesting hand. "Fin, my boy, I think you'd better put that down again," he said slowly. "If you saw some one bury that box you can be pretty sure there was something in it that she didn't want anyone to see. Suppose you put it back and come with me—we'll go down to the village and spend some real money on ice cream soda."

Fin fingered the little box wrapped in lace and tied with blue ribbons.

"Wouldn't you like a handsome bat?" urged Anthony, feeling horribly intrusive as he looked at that little box over which some girl had "cried" as she put it away. "A bat—and a glove—and a mask?" he tempted finally.

"A bat—and a glove—and a mask?" he faltered. "Do you mean it? A bat—and a glove and a mask?"

"Every one and ice cream and candy," declared Anthony. "All right then," said Fin rather crossly, for he had untied the blue ribbons and pulled off the lace covering and peeped at the little carved sandalwood box within. "It would make a dandy box for marbles," he muttered as he tossed the box carelessly into the hole.

The box struck the edge of the hole, bounded back, flew open and disgorged its contents at Anthony's feet.

Fin yelled his disappointment. "Ho! Nothing but letters, huh!" scrambling the things together, "and say, gee, a diamond ring in this box—and a gold locket—and a bracelet—and I don't see any bunnions—but pitchers! Say, mister, here's a pitcher of you!"

"Put those things back—quicker!" commanded Anthony sternly, standing over the small treasure seeker, who was gloating over the diamond engagement ring that Anthony had given Maud Frary.

Fin sullenly obeyed, and when he held the box so that Anthony could wrap it up in the lace and blue ribbons, Anthony could not help reading the little inscription penned on the paper pasted in the cover of the box:

"Here love lies buried—and there is only one love in a woman's life."

When the ground was made smooth again and the pine needles scattered over that little grave of love, Anthony took the treasure seeker to the village, where he feasted him with ice cream and candy and gave him rich gifts of bats and gloves and baseball masks and four silver quarters which Anthony told Fin he could play were pieces-of-eight.

"On my wedding day," promised Anthony gravely, "you may go to that spot and dig and you will find treasures there—even gold money—maybe a dog—now run along home and play ball!"

"When is the wedding day?" demanded Fin expectantly.

Anthony looked down the street toward the Frary home from which an automobile was just driving away.

"My wedding day?" he echoed. "Why, Fin, it was set for the 17th of October, and I don't believe the date will be changed—I'm quite sure it won't," he added decisively, and with a wave of his hand to the lad who had unearthed hidden treasures for him, Anthony took his way toward the Frary house and Maud.

The Latest Hour.

"What time is it, my lad?" asked a traveler of a small boy who was driving a couple of cows home from the fields.

"Almost 12 o'clock, sir," replied the boy.

"I thought it was more," "It's never any more here," returned the lad in surprise. "It just begins at 1 again."—Lustige Blatter.

CHURCH NEWS

Y. W. C. A. to Inaugurate

Three-fold Campaign.

The Young Women's Christian associations of the country will enter this fall upon a campaign having three lines, that on each line to continue for five years. These lines are to carry out suggestions made recently by committees, and adopted unanimously by the associations. The basis of the campaign is the fact, as stated by the associations, that the people of the United States are in the throes of a great moral and spiritual awakening. The associations say that religious leaders are keenly alive to the blurred standards of character and conduct in political, commercial, and in some cases even religious life.

Speaking about young women of America the associations officially say that far too many are narrow, aimless and irreligious, leading superficial lives at a time when the world is demanding consecration and spiritual purpose at home and abroad.

The three parts to this new campaign are character standards, social morality from the Christian point of view, and thrift and efficiency. One plan to attain the former, apart from study, is to try to gain the great meanings underlying Christmas, Easter and the universal day of prayer for students. The social morality involves the question of motherhood, education, society and women's responsibility for public and private conditions. Thrift means the well balanced life, not mere money saving, religious, home, and public if there be one, and efficiency is that which makes the woman helmsman of man, of herself, and of the world in largest ways. All of the campaigns are intended expressly for young women in the colleges. Nation wide efforts are now planned, ready to start with the opening of the full college terms.

Jessie Wilson Promoting Eight Weeks Clubs.

Miss Jessie Wilson, daughter of the president, is a chief promoter of the Eight Weeks club, a feature new this summer in the Young Women's Christian association. There are six hundred such clubs, formed within the past six weeks, and scattered in the small villages or almost every state of the middle west. Miss Wilson is more than mere officer of the association's national board in her relation to these clubs. She is the mother of the idea, and she is in constant touch with its rapid working out.

The Eight Weeks club is a plan to utilize the vacations of girl students—those who do not have to work in summer and are financially able to help others. It is a suggestion from the association that these favored girls, getting college training, give some part of it to others as they go along. For a first season the extraordinary number of seventy-five colleges are furnishing leaders for the clubs. Among them are Miami, Oberlin, Ohio Wesleyan, Goucher where Miss Wilson was trained, Colorado, Alabama Tech, Randolph-Macon, Texas and Grinnell.

This Eight Weeks club plan aims to get hold of young women in the small towns and in the country. It aims not simply to give them city ideas and ways, but to get from them for the city girls some of the originality, brightness and healthful country ways. In turn the college girl gives to the country ones new ideas in home culture, domestic science, social service, religious education, Christian efficiency, and other up to date things just now so much in vogue. Girls in the clubs are taught to study conditions in their own communities. In several instances neglected burial grounds have been mowed, weeds pulled and set to flowers. In other cases choirs have been formed for churches. Children have been taught new games—those having most fun in them. It is Miss Wilson's idea, and it is working out so that the city college girl is strengthened in character and confirmed in knowledge by giving to others what she has in part learned.

THE FOUNDATION
OF THE MOVEMENT

We have to thank the Milwaukee
Journal for calling attention to a remarkable epitome of the evolution in American thought which is bringing about a revolution in our political, business and social structure. It is found in a speech delivered by Walter H. Page, ambassador to Great Britain, to the American Society in London. We select the following paragraphs:

"The people found out this gradual abridgment of economic freedom and they set about removing it. They demanded the reduction of the tariff, which is the mother of privilege. They demanded the removal of the restriction of credit. They demanded the dethronement of speculation in the necessaries of life with the money that they needed in their own affairs. They demanded the reorganization of their school work. They demanded the building up of country life, which the industrial organization had neglected while it built up the towns. They demanded the removal of all artificial direction of their work and of their lives. And this was the beginning of our latest American revolution. For when they discovered how firm a grip
privilege had got on government,
they set about the task of loosening
it in many ways, some wise and some foolish, some direct and some indirect; by investigation, by agitation, by experiment with new devices.

"This is the meaning of such social unrest as we have had. This is the meaning of the revolution in education. This is the meaning of the war on speculation and monopoly. This is the meaning of the referendum and the recall. This is the meaning of the commission form of city government. This is the meaning of the popular election of senators. You will find running through all American life these ten years the struggle for the restoration of free and open opportunity.
It is political, but it is also social. It is also commercial. It is also educational. It is fundamental in our democracy. The change of party control is only one expression of this desire and an experiment to satisfy
it. If it does not succeed, they will again change party control."

Mr. Page seems to have missed nothing in the length, breadth or thickness of the conditions which,
with strong grasp and inspired phraseology, he thus summarizes.

The pedantic philosopher gets but a phase of the movement; he builds his analysis always from an angle.
Mr. Page goes beneath the superficial expressions and grasps the fundamental that this is founded in a repudiation of all old standards and sets up new standards—not political, not commercial, not social
—but of all of these and all else that go to make up LIFE. This is not merely the reorganization of government, it is the evolution of a new people.

THE SUN AND
THE WEATHER

That the time is coming when astronomers will be able to make accurate predictions of the weather at least six months in advance is the statement that is made by Prof. Edwin B. Frost, director of the Yerkes observatory at Williams Bay, this state, in a synopsis of recent discoveries of the sun's relation to the earth. His article is based on the work done by the late Prof. S. P.
Langley of the Smithsonian institution, and his successors, C. G. Abbott and F. E. Fowle, and the observations of the work of German scientists made during Prof. Frost's recent European trip.

Recent discoveries of scientists, says Prof. Frost, tend to show that radiation from the sun is not constant as had been supposed, but varies from day to day. The earth's atmosphere takes up these changes and gradually communicates them to the earth's surface. What remains for the scientists to determine is how soon and to just what degree these changes in radiation from the sun
may be expected to affect the terrestrial temperature.

Prof. Frost asserts that this is a practical problem, touching the interests of every inhabitant of the earth but it will require continuous study, perhaps over many years, to determine what laws if any govern
the changes in radiation. It is Prof.
Frost's opinion that it will be 25 years before this knowledge will be available, so the more or less reliable farmer's almanac is not likely to be discarded immediately.

But these recent discoveries of Professors Abbott and Fowle open a new field to scientists and they may be considered the most important of the country's discoveries for, as Prof. Frost says, the inhabitants of the earth are entirely dependent for their existence upon the results of agriculture and nothing is more certain than that the radiation of the sun lies at the base of the principal weather elements in the earth's atmosphere.

CONFIDENCE DEMANDS
A FOUNDATION STONE

The Saturday Evening Post delivers itself of the following comment
upon the Wilson administration's financial measure:

"The scheme proposed by the Glass-Owen bill can be worked without the co-operation of state banks.
It would still effect a dependable rediscount market for commercial paper. With only the national banks joining, there could be no such breakdown of the country's banking system as occurred six years ago. But any scheme of bank co-ordination which is so little attractive to the banks themselves that a majority of them hold aloof from it falls decidedly short of the ideal.
A more liberal and confiding temper toward the banks would improve the bill."

New, really, isn't a "liberal and confiding temper toward the banks"
the root of past banking evils? Isn't the abuse of that liberality and confidence the thing that has resulted in unjust private control of credits? With government control it will no longer be dangerous for the public to disport a "liberal and confiding temper toward the banks". We do not say that the present law is the best that can be devised, but if it needs further revision it is along the line of protection to the people, not "liberality" toward the banks.

John D. says that "waste of energy
is one of the wanton extravagances of the time." It's all right for John D. to talk thus, but with most of us, energy is the only thing we have to get gay on.

"Void the fly as you would a viper," says a health authority. That sounds all right, but the fly won't let us.

We tremble lest Greece should whip Bulgaria. Think of replacing the Bulgarian blouse with those short skirts that are worn by the Greek soldiers?

car may live to seek another bar.

With dew baths and grape juice,
Greek dances and sweet simplicity,
truly Washington is another Arcadia.

Quips and Cranks
and Wanton Wiles

The Morning Mail

When I sit down in my old office
chair,
I eagerly peruse my morning mail.
It comes from here and there and everywhere,
A stack of it awaits me without fail.

The letters open-faced I cast aside,
I care not for the mail that's peek-
a-hoo.
The fronts of isinglass I can't abide,
I know that they contain bills long past due.

The sealed mail is the sort that gets
my eye.
I open it, my expectation keen.
I look it through till half-past ten,
and sigh—
In all the bunch there's no check to be seen.

An automobile ad in many hues,
A circular concerning garden
seeds,
A letter from the lodge demanding
dues,
A relative's fond note tells of his needs.

A speech made by our congressman,
I get;
An oil well pamphlet tells of work
begun.
My mail has never furnished one
thrill yet,
There's nothing new, by heck, beneath the sun.

Too Lazy to Live.

An Atlanta man tells of an amusing experience he had in a mountainous region in a southwestern state, where the inhabitants are notoriously shiftless. Arriving at a dilapidated shanty at the noon hour,
he inquired as to the prospect for getting dinner.

The head of the family, who had been "resting" on a fallen tree in front of his dwelling, made reply to the effect that he "guessed ma'd hev suthin' onto the table putty soon."
With this encouragement the traveler dismounted. To his chagrin, however, he soon discovered that the food set before him was such that he could not possibly "make a meal." He made such excuses as he could for his lack of appetite, and finally bethought himself of a kind of nourishment which he might venture to take which was sure to be found in any locality. He asked for some milk.

"Don't have milk no more," said
the head of the place. "The dawg's dead."

"The dog?" cried the stranger.

"What on earth has the dog to do with it?"

"Well," explained the host medi-tatively, "them cows don't seem to know 'nough to come up and be milked themselves. The dog he used to go for 'em and fetch 'em up."

A Choice in Surgery.

The conversation led to surgical operations the other day, and Congressman John H. Small of North Carolina told of the experience of a southern blacksmith.

The blacksmith, who was long on the wisdom of his trade, but short on medical lore, according to the congressman, sprained his wrist one afternoon and lost no time in hustling to the office of a physician.

The doctor examined the wrist and then took a small bottle from a shelf, but found it empty.

"James," said he, turning to an assistant, "go upstairs and bring me down a couple of phials."

"What's that?" exclaimed the patient, suddenly showing large signs of emotion.

"I was merely asking my assistant to bring me down a couple of phials from upstairs," answered the doctor.

"Phials?" cried the blacksmith,
with a look of determination. "No,
you don't, doc! If that hand has got to come off you will use an ax or a saw!"

ERUPTION ON ANKLE
GREAT SUFFERING

Many Nights Did Not Sleep. Burned
All the Time. Wore Bandage
Night and Day. Used Cuticura
Soap and Ointment. Now Well.

Kingsville, Mo.—"My trouble began eighteen years ago. Nearly half of the time there were running sores around my ankle;
sometimes it would be two years at a time before they were healed. There were many nights I did not sleep because of the great suffering. The sores were deep running ones and so sore that I could not bear anything to touch them. They would burn
all the time and sting like a lot of bees were confined around my ankle. I could not scratch it. It was always so sensitive to touch. I could not let my clothes touch
it. The skin was very red. I made what I called a cap out of white felt, lining paper and soft white cloth to hold it in shape. This I wore night and day.

"I tried many remedies for most of the eighteen years with no effect. Last summer when my ankle had been sore for over a year and much worse than ever before I sent for some Cuticura Soap and Ointment. It would itch and burn, besides a great hurting
that I think tongue could never explain.
The very first time I used Cuticura Soap
and Ointment I gained relief; they relieved the pain right then. It was three months from the time I commenced using Cuticura Soap and Ointment until the sores were entirely healed. I have not been troubled since." (Signed) Mrs. Charles E. Brooke, Oct. 22, 1912.

Cuticura Soap 25c, and Cuticura Ointment
6c, are sold everywhere. Liberal sample of Cuticura mailed free, with 32-p. Skin Book. Address: "Cuticura," Dept. T, Boston.

Men who shave and shampoo with Cuticura Soap will find it best for skin and scalp.

BRAN BREAD

Has been prescribed by physicians for years as a food laxative.

"Is it Mr. Estrilla an' not Tommy North that she's doin' this manueverin' to cover up?" she asked herself mentally.

All this had passed with the swiftness of thought—when thought travels the electric wires of such a mind as Rosalie's. But now Betsy-Barbara was speaking:

"The reason I haven't been there, Mrs. Le Grange, is frankly because of Mr. Estrilla. He's so—so overpowering I guess I mean. Of course, I don't take him seriously, and yet
he does look at me so and pay me such extraordinary compliments! I don't know exactly how to handle that kind of man," she ended with a little nervous laugh.

"Of course, you understand, I like him. I can't exactly let him see how much I like him, for fear he'll think it"—she paused and laughed
—"it's the way he seems to want me to like him."

"He's a dear," said Rosalie with genuine warmth; "can't say when I've seen a young man that an old woman like me feels more like wantin' to play around with. But it is bothersome to you, I can see. Especially when there's a nice young American man that you feel some responsibility for."

Betsy-Barbara bristled a moment
at this. But as Rosalie had foreseen—the feminine instinct for confession was stronger than the feminine instinct for concealment.

"I've had a hard time to keep Mr.
North from seeing it. Not that it's any of his business exactly, or that I think he'd care particularly. But just at this moment, Mr. North really needs me. If he thought that Mr. Estrilla—well, it might spoil all I'm trying to do for him."

"Yes, indeed!" replied Rosalie,
without a trace of irony.

Betsy-Barbara went on in a nonchalant voice.
"These two men are nothing to me, of course. Mr. Estrilla is a very interesting person. He's handsome, and in the right way—if you know what I mean. I love his little accent and his witty talk, and I think his singling is simply adorable. As for
Mr. North—Betsy-Barbara paused.
Then her voice ran glibly to its carefully careless conclusion—"he's only a very good friend."

"It's Tommy North, all right!"
was Rosalie's mental comment.

"Well," she said aloud, "those things are like anything else. Those look worse a ways off than they do when you're facin' them. Slip me a word if any of it ever really bothers you, an' I can probably help. You wouldn't care to do what I asked for Miss Estrilla?"

"Oh, yes. I can surely do that!"
replied Betsy-Barbara, her generosity reviving, now that she had opened her mind a little.

"That's a good girl! Now remember—wait a while before you get it in—I don't want her to suspect that I tipped you off. Goodness! What are those girls doin' in the kitchen that makes such a smell!" And Rosalie sped to her household duties.

The next evening, as the little party in the parlor adjourned, Betsy-Barbara called Rosalie aside to say:

"I did as you told me—in fact as soon as I began talking about Mr.
North this evening, Miss Estrilla
asked me herself how he was doing.
So I gave her the whole story about the agency, you know."

"Did she seem relieved?" asked Rosalie.
"No," said Betsy-Barbara, musing, "relieved isn't exactly the word. It was really queer the way she took it—she was so interested.
Why, she just listened breathlessly."

As Rosalie finished her session with the phonograph that night and began to take down her hair, she talked to herself under her breath.

"Well, Miss Estrilla connected up
the two things, all right—that spirit dope about the whisky bottle with the little talk I planted in Betsy-Barbara Lane. Clever of me to think of Betsy-Barbara. But I've got to go slow—slower'n I ever did in my life."

CHAPTER XII.

The Perez Family.

In a remote corner of Central Park, Rosalie was holding a conference with Grimaldi, her specially-assigned detective in the Hanksa case. He was a small Italian of the blond northern type, a throwback to some remote Gothic ancestor. He showed his race, however, in contour, in manner, and in certain personal peculiarities, as the care with which he waxed his mustache, the loud color in his shirt and cravat,
the neatness of his small pointed shoes. Schoolmaster that he had been, linguist that he was, he spoke English in academic form but with trimmings of police slang.

"I think," said Grimaldi, "that the real name is Perez."

"How did you get that?"
"It took a little time. First I frisked his room. I went in as a gas inspector."

"Which was takin' risks," admonished Rosalie.

"Not the way I did it. The real inspector is my friend; I had his permission to impersonate him."

"Pretty good!" commented Rosalie. "An' you found nothing about —what I'm after?"

"No. That was the suspicious thing—I mean, the absence of any sign of identification looked curious to me. I didn't have much time, so I went straight to the favorable places. This Estrilla or Perez had only four or five books. There was no writing in them—but the fly-leaf was torn out of all the old ones. I examined his clothes. They look English to me—certainly they aren't the work of an American tailor nor yet a Spanish. Perhaps you don't know that a tailor generally sews somewhere behind a pocket a little tag giving the date,
his own name and the name of the customer?"

"Don't I?" inquired Rosalie. A hundred times she had used that peculiarity of tailors as a part of her "mediumship."

"Well," said Grimaldi, "they are gone."

Rosalie looked her surprise.
"Gone, every one of them, ripped right out," said Grimaldi. "You could see where the threads had been. The same with the hats. But I found one thing which didn't amount to much, except that it was an opening. He has a camera. I don't know why I examined that."

unless it was a hunch. It was foreign-made—American boxes are manufactured by a trust, and they all look alike. Down by the range-scale I found a nickel plate such as agents always put on cameras. It read: "J. Lichtenstein, Cameras and Camera Supplies, Port of Spain, Trinidad."

"Where's that?"
Trinidad is an island off the coast of South America—near Venezuela. Port of Spain is the main town. It's a British possession, but there are many French and Spanish residents. I had taken the precaution, when I started out, to have the police photographer get a snap-shot of this Estrilla. I took the picture to—well, never mind who he is. He has lived all over South America.

He knows every Spanish colony in town. He helps the police as a stool-pigeon, which is why I'm not telling his name. And he gave me what may be an identification. He's almost sure that Estrilla is a Spaniard from Port of Spain named Juan Perez.
The Perez family were cocoa growers in Trinidad. The head of the family was named Miguel Perez—I suppose, though, you aren't interested in the family."

"That's just what I want to know."

Old-timers Tell of Early Day Thrills and Smiles

TALE OF THE MOB THAT HUNG SCOTTY

By Mark R. Byers.

"Do I know any stories about old times in La Crosse? Well, I know one that might be a story, in a way." J. B. Funke's eyes twinkled as he answered. "Did you ever hear about the hanging of Scotty? You did? Well, I can tell you about that if you think that will make a good one."

Mr. Funke was eagerly urged to go ahead. The hanging of Scotty by a mob in La Crosse is a legend in La Crosse, but there are few who know its intimate details, and Mr. Funke seemed not only willing to answer but sure of his facts.

Leading Procession
"Yes, I was down-town and right in the midst of things when the affair occurred," Mr. Funke began. "Scotty shot Frank Burton, as perhaps you may have heard, while Mr. Burton was leading a torchlight procession. It was in the old days, when the parties used to campaign with white capes and torches, parading around the streets. It was in the midst of the Blaine campaign, I remember, and feeling was pretty high."

"Nobody ever knew what caused Scotty to shoot Mr. Burton. Scotty was a river-rat, and so far as we know he didn't even know Mr. Burton, who was a broker here, and universally liked and respected. Mr. Burton was passing along by Scotty at the side of the procession, when without warning Scotty pulled a pistol and shot him. He fell in the gutter, and for a minute the crowd was quiet."

"Then a roar went up, and it was just by luck that the officers were able to get him away from the crowd. The shooting was right on Fourth and Main, and the old fire station used to stand where the Millan building does now. They took him in there, and later, when things had quieted a little, sprang him over to the jail, which was then in the courthouse.

"The mob formed an hour after the shooting, early in the evening. There was no speechmaking or disorder about it, though. They got together as if by common consent, and marched in regular fashion to Courthouse park."

Sheriff on Steps

"The news went before us of course, and when we got there, Old Bob Scott, the sheriff, was standing on the steps of the jail, rather pale in the light of the torches lots of the boys who had been in the procession still carried. Bob didn't like his job, I could see, but he was determined to stick to it."

"Stand back, men," he called. "I'll shoot the first man that comes up these steps."

"He had a big horse-pistol in each hand that was wandering over the men in front of the mob, and he looked as if he meant business, but the men before him were as determined as he."

"Now Massa Bob," spoke up Nigger Nathan, who was one of the leaders. "We don't want to hurt you, but we don't got to have that man."

"Old Nigger Nathan was a firm friend of Frank Burton's, and he was a respected citizen of this community. Well, sir, the old dorky had no sooner said that to the sheriff, than he reached up and grabbed by the leg. With a jerk he had him down in the crowd before he had time to use his guns, and he was disarmed in a jiffy. They left a guard over him, and then they began at the doors."

Batter Down Doors

"Six men on each swung two big eight-by-eight timbers, and it wasn't long before the door cracked and crashed inward. The mob surged forward toward the door, and as they poured into the jail the last thing I heard was 'Make no mistakes, men. Be sure to get the right man.'"

"They found Scotty in his cell, all crouched up in a corner, and positively quaking with fear. It was no job at all to capture him, and inside of ten minutes from the time they arrived in front of the jail, they had the prisoner outside."

"Someone tied a rope around his neck in a hurry, and some one else threw the other end over a branch, and then the mob tailed onto the loose end walked away with it, and Scotty was jerked up into the air. They raised and lowered him a couple of times to make his death quicker, and then tied the rope and left him hanging. I can see him twisting up there yet!"

"Later in the evening, the sheriff came around and cut him down. There was no rioting or disorder on the part of the mob, which makes it the strangest thing I ever heard of. It was a bunch of citizens who took the law into their own hands when they were aroused by a wanton killing, and as soon as they had punished the offender they quietly dispersed to their homes."

"And there you are, young man. Do you think that is enough of a story?"

LEES GIRL SUICIDE CORONER'S VERDICT

At an inquiry on Thursday into the death of Miss Alice Lees of Alma, Wis., a Chicago coroner's jury returned a verdict of suicide by shooting while temporarily insane. The body of Miss Lees was found on the lake shore at the foot of Lunt avenue on July 25. It was believed for a time that the young woman had been murdered, but investigation established that she had been suffering from small tumors and was despondent.

Down to Where It Wasn't Good

Into a general mercantile store in North Carolina went a mountaineer with his little son, who had never been in a town before. Many wonderful things that boy looked upon, and when the proprietor saw his eyes sparkle at sight of the open hogsheds of brown sugar he placed a high chair beside the hogsheds and told him to help himself, to eat all he wanted.

The boy entered upon this exquisite delight with indescribable avidity. He ate and ate, rested, and ate again. Presently the proprietor saw his guest had stopped eating, while he looked regretfully into the great depth of sweetness.

"What's the matter, sonny—have you got enough?"

"No, sir," with a deep sigh. "I ain't got enough, but I got down to where it ain't good no more."

The Rascally Bill Smith.

George Newman, during the recent Baltimore convention of advertising men, told at the midnight banquet a number of advertising anecdotes.

"Then there was Bill Smith"—so one anecdote began—"the rascally Bill Smith, who put in all the papers an advertising saying:

"Send thirty 2-cent stamps for speedy, safe and certain rat exterminator."

"A good many people, their properties being overrun with rats, sent for the rat exterminator. In return for their thirty stamps they got this recipe from Bill:

"Treat your rats with kindness—they'll die of surprise on the spot."

M'GOVERN JEALOUS OF PREROGATIVES

Vetoes Bill Taking Choice of Court Investigating Commissioners from His Hands

MADISON, Wis., Aug. 2.—(Special.)—A veto of the last bill introduced in the senate came from Governor McGovern, and the message contains a tinge of irony. The bill was introduced by the judiciary committee and created a joint committee to investigate the system of courts in Wisconsin, with a view to promoting efficiency and economy in the administration of justice. It also repealed chapter 650 of the laws of 1913.

"The only change in the law now attempted to be made," says the governor, "is to take away from the governor the power of appointing three members of the joint committee created by chapter 650, and to confer this power upon the president of the State Bar association. It is difficult to understand why the legislature should change its mind about the competency of the governor to appoint these three members or why the power thus attempted to be taken from him should be conferred upon one who is not a public officer."

On the ground that the state's printing bill is already too large and for other reasons, Governor McGovern vetoed the bill No. 634-S, by the terms of which each state officer and each judge gets only one copy of the Blue Book while each member of the legislature gets 300. Under the existing law the legislators get 250, and each officer of the legislature gets 50. The bill increases the latter's quota to 300, along with the members.

SLAYER COLLAPSES IN COURTROOM

KENOSHA, Wis., Aug. 2.—Peter Javalta, arrested on a charge of murdering Otto Langebach, waived examination at preliminary hearing in municipal court on Friday and was held for trial without bail.

Javalta told the court he had no intention of killing any one and that he drew a knife only after he had been attacked. He collapsed in the court room during the hearing.

Benjamin Bishop, son of State Senator I. T. Bishop, was held in bonds of $2,500 as a witness. The coroner's inquest placed blame for the death of Langebach on Javalta.

DIVES SIXTY FEET ON HEAD IN MUD

RACINE, Wis., Aug. 2.—Caught by a fast passenger train on the high Northwestern railroad bridge west of the city, Frank Holy, a mechanic, 46 years old, dived to the river, 60 feet below. He struck head first in the mud. The water is about three feet deep at the point. Part of his body remained above the surface. He leaves a wife and several children.

DECISIVE BATTLE DUE.

PEKIN, Aug. 2.—It was believed today by the government that the decisive battle of the revolution is about to be fought north of Canton. The news that three divisions of the Canton troops had set out to meet the northerners is welcomed here, because it means that the clash will come away from the city and Canton will not be jeopardized.

La Crosse Man Wins Honors and Prizes of Military Title in State

WINS BY BUT THREE POINTS

Gold Watch and Champion's Shield His by Defeating Mueller

CAMP DOUGLAS, Wis., Aug. 2.—To Sergt. Maj. John F. Klinge, La Crosse, go the honors and prizes of the military rifle championship of the state of Wisconsin. He is the winner of the gold watch presented by the Officers' association of the Wisconsin National Guard, and he will also hold the championship shield presented by S. A. Cook, Neenah, which is shot for annually. Sergt. Mueller, Marshfield, gave Klinge a great run, the latter winning out by the narrow margin of three points.

In the pair shooting yesterday, Klinge and Gay had a decided slump and were passed by the two Shields brothers, Milwaukee. The names and scores of the twelve high competitors competing for this state team for 1913 and who received distinguished marksman decoration were as follows:

MRS. PATRICK LAMB DIES AT CALEDONIA

CALEDONIA, Minn., Aug. 2.—Mrs. Patrick Lamb, a former resident of this city, died at the home of her daughter, Mrs. M. Gallagher, at La Crosse, Wednesday evening, at the age of 75 years. The funeral was held from St. John's Catholic church in this city yesterday morning, Fr. Madden officiating. The deceased is survived by a son, Patrick of Black Hammer, and three daughters, Nellie of Seattle, Wash., Mary Gallagher of La Crosse and Alice Leider of this city. Interment was made in the family lot in Preble cemetery. Miss Georgina Lommen returned from St. Paul last evening, where she conducted a six weeks' summer school at St. Anthony Park. Miss Mary Weida, Miss Lucile Weida and Geneva Rasmussen returned from Winona last evening. Mr. and Mrs. E. K. Roverud have gone to Lehigh, Iowa, to visit their daughter, Mrs. Daniels. Mr. Harold Lommen departed yesterday for Seymour, Iowa, to join a stock company. Mr. and Mrs. Mackintosh and little daughter departed for their new home at St. Anthony Park, Minn., where Mr. Mackintosh will teach agriculture at the state farm school the coming year. Mr. Mackintosh and family have been residents of this city for the past two years and leave a host of friends who regret their removal. The members of the Epworth league enjoyed their annual picnic at Elberta yesterday. Mrs. Harrington and daughter Pauline returned yesterday from a three weeks' visit with her parents in Wisconsin. Mrs. Walter Krick and daughters, Estelle and Alice, and son Robert arrived from Berthold, N. D., today for an extended visit with relatives and friends. Mrs. Merlo entertained the members of the Ladies' auxiliary of the Presbyterian church at her home here yesterday. Mr. Ed Zimmerhahl was a passenger to La Crosse yesterday. Mr. Chappelle left yesterday for Chippewa Falls, Wis., where he will visit his mother. Mr. Will Schummers departed for Heron Lake, Minn. Mrs. Daniel Heinz of Brownsville visited friends here yesterday. Mrs. Steneheim of Spring Grove spent yesterday with her son Edward and family. Miss Minnie Stevens of New Albin is visiting her sister, Mrs. Helmer Solberg, this week. Mrs. Libbie Felton and daughter Maude returned to their home in Mankato after a visit at the home of N. Krier.

THE ONLY REASON

I lately talked so much about filling over 200,000 Prescriptions here is this—I wanted to show you that I enjoy the confidence of our Doctors and my patrons, and that you will be perfectly safe in letting me prepare your next Prescription. Of course I am perfectly equipped with everything in this line and can fill any Prescription that comes in, precisely as prescribed by your Doctor. All depends upon the quality of the ingredients and the mode of preparation, in fact the effect of your Prescription always depends upon these two points.

THE HEART IS THE DYNAMO OF LIFE

It is the perpetual motion of existence.

One of the commonest symptoms of heart disease is shortness of breath and weakness upon the slightest exertion, with swelling of the feet and sometimes abdomen. Many cases of heart disease exist in persons who are apparently robust and who are not supposed to have anything the matter with them. Heart disease occurs as a complication of Bright's disease, the heart becoming very much enlarged and gradually weaker, as life advances. Rheumatism is also one of the commonest causes of heart disease.

If you are conscious that your heart is any more a part of you than your foot, it is a matter for immediate consultation with Dr. Turbin, the expert specialist and surgeon. Prompt attention oftentimes saves serious after trouble and possible death. The chances for recovery depend largely upon to what extent the disease has progressed. With the aid of suitable heart tonics which will act on the muscles of the heart and enable it to perform its functions, patients are enabled to live to an old age with comparative ease and freedom from pain.

Dr. Turbin has specialized on the heart for twenty years. He has seen every phase of heart weakness; has treated everything in the shape of a weak heart. He has found that often the so-called heart troubles are not from the heart at all. He can show you wherein your hope may lie.

Have you fluttering of the heart?

Have you skipping of the heart?

Have you palpitation of the heart?

Have you pain in the region of the heart?

Have you pain in side of shoulder-blade?

Have you shortness of breath?

Have you weak, sinking, cold or dizzy spells?

Have you rheumatism?

Have you throbbing of the heart in excitement or exertion?

If any of these questions apply to your case, it would be well for you to take immediate steps.

Consult with Dr. Turbin. Dr. Turbin is an expert on health and medicines.

DR. TURBIN

of Berlin, Germany, the expert Specialist, who has visited La Crosse for the past twenty years, will be again in La Crosse at the Jefferson Hotel, Tuesday, August 19th.

SEND DELEGATES TO LAKE GENEVA

Local Association to Be Represented at Summer Conference of the Y. W. C. A.

At a meeting of the executive committee of the Geneva club of the Young Women's Christian association it was decided to send two delegates to the Y. W. C. A. summer conference at Lake Geneva August 12 to 21, and Misses Florence Sellenthin and Cora Bangsberg were chosen for the privilege. Miss Bertha Hoefke will accompany them, while the L. U. B. A. club of the local association will also send two delegates, Misses Clara Kittleson and Tillie Galke.

The summer conference of the Y. W. C. A. is held annually at the Y. M. C. A. grounds at Lake Geneva and is attended by girls from all over the central portion of the country, from as far east as West Virginia and as far west as the Dakotas and Nebraska. The attendance last year was over six hundred.

The scenery about Lake Geneva is especially beautiful, it having been likened to the famed Sea of Galilee in Palestine, travelers saying that Geneva is more like the Galilean lake than any other known body of water.

The mornings at the conference are devoted to lectures and study classes, while the afternoons are turned over to recreation, of which there is variety enough to please anyone. Boating, canoeing and swimming, tennis, croquet, ball, etc., are forms of amusement most popular with the girls. There are also various contests, one day being devoted especially to water sports, the various associations represented at the conference entering contestants in the various races. A good deal of amusement is created by "Stunt Day" when the different associations each put on a stunt of some sort. Other features of the conference are a sailboat trip around the lake and a trip to the famous Yerkes Observatory which is situated at Williams Bay, on the lake.

KOUDELKA NAMED SUPERIOR BISHOP

Auxiliary Bishop of Milwaukee to Succeed Bishop Schinner, Resigned

MILWAUKEE, Aug. 2.—Rev. Joseph Maria Koudelka, auxiliary bishop of Milwaukee today was appointed bishop of the Superior, Wis., Roman Catholic diocese to succeed Bishop Augustin Francis Schinner, who resigned on account of ill health.

Bishop Koudelka is a Bohemian and is 61 years old. He was ordained to the priesthood in 1875 and his first charge was over a Cleveland, Ohio, parish. Later he was stationed at St. Louis. He has been auxiliary bishop of Milwaukee since 1911.

The new prelate is noted as a linguist and as an author of books in the Bohemian, German and English tongues. Among his more widely known works are various textbooks for Catholic parochial schools, a prayer book for children and a short history of the Catholic church.

Bishop Schinner sent his resignation as Bishop to Rome several months ago because he feared the climate at Superior was undermining his health. This and a desire to take up missionary work, probably among the Indians of the west, prompted him to give up the post he held for eight years. Local prelates believe however, that Bishop Schinner will be appointed to another diocese instead of being allowed to become a "free agent."

His successful administration at Superior, they say, makes him more valuable to the church as a diocese head than as a missionary.

WANT FIRST DAY A HALF - HOLIDAY

Attempt Will Be Made to Have Mayor Declare the Opening of Northern League Holiday

It is probable that an attempt will be made to have Mayor Ori J. Sorensen declare a half holiday next Tuesday, and to have all the business houses in the city close up when La Crosse and Winnipeg stage the first professional baseball game that has been seen here for two years.

The committee on arrangements, consisting of local men, will meet tonight at the La Crosse club at 8 o'clock and make final arrangements for the opening day. Formal request to the mayor to declare the day a holiday will be made, it is expected. A parade will be arranged.

Business Manager Kelley of the new La Crosse team, who is in La Crosse, today announced that the Colts have secured a couple of new pitchers, one of whom is claimed to be the best in the Northern league. This slab phenom is a nittled Tony Faeth, and he distinguished himself on his first day with the La Crosse aggregation by defeating Superior in a ten inning game.

Faeth opened the season with Virginia, but he got into difficulties with Manager Spike Shannon, and quit just before Shannon got fired. Until he joined the La Crosse team he has been playing independent ball in North Dakota.

The other pitcher is a former member of the Gunthers of Chicago. The Gunthers are the fastest semipro organization in the windy city, and while Mr. Kelley could not name the new artist, he said that he would be here all set to pitch next Tuesday if required.

Mr. Kelley said Tony Faeth will go against Winnipeg on the opening day, unless he should happen to break his arm or suffer something equally unfortunate.

FORMER SOCIAL LEADER SUICIDES

CHICAGO, Aug. 2.—That Mrs. Alice Cook-Church, former social leader at Cedar Rapids, Iowa, committed suicide while temporarily insane, was the verdict of a coroner's jury today.

Mrs. Church ended her life yesterday afternoon in the Hotel La Salle by inhaling chloroform. She stuffed a mesh bag, present from her divorced husband with cotton and saturated the mass with chloroform. Her former husband is Bert S. Church, general manager of a packing company in Cedar Rapids.

A sealed letter Mrs. Church left addressed to her husband contained references to family affairs, and this one sentence is interpreted to mean that she was contemplating suicide: "I have just visited the family cemetery and I believe it needs a new stone."

"FRAMEUP" CLAIM MATTHEWS' ARREST

WASHINGTON, Aug. 2.—Officials here this afternoon were inclined to regard the arrest in New Orleans of Special Agent Matthew of the department of justice and his assistant, J. L. Mott, as a "political frame-up" by factions of Mexicans in this country.

Charge Terreros of the Mexican embassy declared that he had requested the arrest of Senator Brito, who was represented in press dispatches as having caused the arrest of Matthews and Mott because of alleged robbery with violence. He asserted that Senator Brito was not an ex-governor of Campeche province, and that he was in reality a famous bandit.

Special Attorney Herron of the department of justice, admitted that he requested Brito's arrest by Matthews in a telegram signed "McReynolds."

The department of justice asked District Attorney Guion to forward a report in the case and a special agent has been detailed to investigate the matter.

MINE DISTRICT QUIET

RECALL STATE TROOPS FROM SEVERAL OF COPPER TOWNS IN MICHIGAN TODAY

CALUMET, Mich., Aug. 2.—Following a period of absolute quiet in the Michigan copper country where 15,000 miners are on strike, steps were taken today to recall the state troops from several districts. The troops will be held in reserve in the central camp at Calumet. Last strikers, militiamen and citizens mingled in peace as a great open air concert given by the First Regiment band of Detroit.

State officers of the American Federation of Labor were expected to arrive here tonight to learn the true extent of the many reported disorders.

ALBERT SILL IS DEAD AT HOME

At the age of 22 years, Albert R. Sill died at the home of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Carl Sill, 1603 South Ninth street, last evening. Deceased is survived by his parents, two sisters, Mrs. Clayton Allen and Miss Gustie Sill of Victory, Wis., and by two brothers, Gustav and Julius of this city. The funeral will be held from the residence at 2 o'clock Monday afternoon and from the West Avenue Methodist church at 2:30. Rev. J. E. Watson officiating. Interment will be in Oak Grove cemetery.

COMPLAINTS MADE OF DIRTY STREETS

People in the residence section of the city are daily complaining about the poor condition of many of the streets.

In many instances, they say, the city sent scrapers over them months ago and shoved the dirt into the gutters where it still remains. The odor which arises following rains, they claim, is bad and is a menace to public health.

George Falk, commissioner of streets, maintains that he is working with but half a crew and that the economy plan advocated in the city hall is responsible.

PRINCE'S LEG BROKEN

DANZIG, Aug. 2.—Prince Frederick Sigismund's leg was broken this afternoon when his horse threw him and then fell on him, in a military drill.

PLAN CONCERTS FOR HARVESTERS

DEVILS LAKE, N. D., Aug. 2.—A race is on here among farmers to furnish the most attractive entertainment for harvesters. With the crop ready to cut within a week or two, labor is more scarce than usual. Farmers have found that the use of automobiles in the evening is no longer sufficient inducement to hold their help. In addition they are planning to give band concerts and other amusements during the evenings and on Sundays. All work will be stopped at 6 p. m. "The stampeede," a reproduction of the frontier days, and a water carnival are planned for August 6.

BIG CELEBRATION FOR NEXT FOURTH

Utermoehl Planning Civic Event to Advertise La Crosse in 1914; Good Idea—Doerflinger

A big civic and industrial event, to last an entire week next July, is the plan now being worked out by John L. Utermoehl, secretary of the La Crosse board of trade.

The tentative plan includes a monster Fourth of July celebration to be followed by the "Home Made" week which the board of trade has decided to hold annually. In connection it is the scheme to make the "Made in La Crosse" week also a home coming week for former residents.

Mr. William Doerflinger, president of the board of trade, is enthusiastic about the plan and it is probable that committees will be appointed well in advance to make the affair one of the biggest and best in municipal history.

DIES IN CONVULSIONS

QUARRY COOK MRS. DOMINIC YEAGER BROUGHT TO HOSPITAL IN VAIN ATTEMPT TO SAVE LIFE

After an illness of only two hours, Mrs. Ella Yeager, wife of Dominic Yeager, Brownsville, died at a local hospital this morning at 9 o'clock. Mr. and Mrs. Yeager were employed at the quarry of George Holzhammer in Mormon Coulee, Mrs. Yeager doing the cooking for the crew. This morning at 7 o'clock she was taken violently ill with convulsions and was immediately brought to the city and taken to the hospital, where she died soon afterward. She was 22 years of age at the time of her death.

Deceased is survived by her husband, her parents, Mr. and Mrs. George Brown of Brownsville, and three sisters. The body will be taken to Brownsville, where the funeral will be held from the Catholic church at 9 o'clock Tuesday morning.

RACE TO COST FISHER MONEY

PUT IN BAY, Ohio, Aug. 2.—Carl Fisher, wealthy Indianapolis sportsman, is today figuring how much of a dent will be put in his bank roll as a result of the defeat last evening of his cruiser Shadow by Speejacks, the speedy motorboat owned by A. Y. Gowan, of Cleveland.

As Speejacks consumes 25 cents worth of gasoline a minute, Fisher is going to furnish a few oil trust dividends in carrying out his agreement to pay all the expenses of a trip to Florida for Gowan and a party next winter.

It is estimated that $35,000 was lost on Shadow in addition to the $10,000 bet between the owners. Equipped with new eight cylinder eight by eight engines and stripped of three tons of equipment, Speejacks made the thirty-three miles in one hour, seven minutes and thirty-one seconds. Shadow was four minutes behind.

GAS EXPLOSION IMPRISONS MINERS

HARRISBURG, Pa., Aug. 2.—An explosion of gas in the East Brookside mine at Tower City, Schuylkill county, shortly before noon imprisoned several hundred miners. It is estimated 100 or more are dead, but details are not obtainable, as all efforts of rescuing parties have thus far failed. The bodies of two miners have been recovered. There were two explosions of gas.

Fire Boss Schaffstall has been taken from the mine fatally burned. The mine is owned and operated by the Reading Coal & Iron company.

SENATORS CLASH ON FLOOR TODAY

Kern and Gallinger in a Wordy War Over the Printing of Daniels' Speech

WASHINGTON, Aug. 2.—A heated exchange of personalities between Majority Leader Kern and Minority Leader Gallinger enlivened the senate session today as the result of an inoffensive motion by Senator Swanson, that Secretary of the Navy Daniels' speech to the graduating class at Annapolis be printed as a private document.

"Is that the speech?" inquired Senator Gallinger, "in which the secretary advised that the officers and crews mess together?"

"Or is it," asked Senator Clarke, of Wyoming, "the speech that caused a riot?"

"I don't believe," asserted Senator Kern, "that the secretary of the navy ever gave such advice. I do know that in one speech he rebuked that snobbish spirit among the performed officer of the navy which made them in one instance to my personal knowledge prevent the appointment as an officer of a clean, studious man, who had been a common sailor. They refused to have a man who had been a sailor eat with them at their table."

Senator Gallinger hotly retorted that he was informed of the facts when he said the secretary advised the men and officers to mingle at mess. He rebuked Kern for attempting to "read him a lesson."

"There is an impression here," answered Kern, "that no senator young in the service dare speak for fear of being criticised, or attacked by some of the older senators."

Gallinger laughed at this charge and repeated he would "not be lectured as to any facts which he cared to state on his own authority." Kern closed the repartee with the remark that not all of the attacks on the younger senators were made openly on the floor. Kern is in his first term and Gallinger has served 23 years.

LOVED LA CROSSE; GETS JAIL TERM

James Williams, alias James Crowley, laborer, loved La Crosse so well that he refused to heed Chief Webber's advice to leave its boundaries. Twice he was escorted across the bridge by policemen and twice he returned, to beg on the North side.

Today he was charged with vagrancy and drew fifteen days in the county jail.

Historic Crimes and Mysteries

By WALT MASON

A Joke on Justice

FOR many weeks the body of William Shaw had been hanging in chains from a gibbet near Edinburgh. In daylight and darkness, in sunshine and storm, the poor husk of that unfortunate man swung and creaked. Such a spectacle was not uncommon two hundred years ago, but usually the victim had friends or sympathizers, who gave the passing tribute of a tear. William Shaw, however, was an object of general execration; and passersby shook their fists at his swaying form and said his fate was too good for him. Parents took their children to see that shriveled relic of humanity, for no moral lessons could be too violent in those days, and cautioned them to mark and remember the punishment of a man who slew his own daughter, as Bonnie a lass as there was in Edinburgh town. Then one day a clergyman and several officers of the law, followed by many citizens, went to that wayside gibbet and tenderly took down all that was left of William Shaw. The remains were borne to the consecrated ground of a church cemetery, and there buried with all pious forms. The minister made a talk that melted all the hearers to tears; and representatives of the law planted a flag on the grave when the dirt had been filled in.

The other side of the double house was occupied by a man named Morrison, and it seems clear that Mr. Morrison had a long nose and longer ears, for when the trouble came upon Shaw, Morrison could repeat from memory entire dialogues he had heard, with his ear to the keyhole.

One evening father and daughter had a longer discussion than was usual, and Morrison was Johnny on the spot. Morrison could repeat from memory entire dialogues he had heard, with his ear to the keyhole.

"One evening father and daughter had a longer discussion than was usual, and Morrison was Johnny on the spot. Morrison could repeat from memory entire dialogues he had heard, with his ear to the keyhole."

She didn't know just what had happened, but he certainly had a cut on the girl's face. "Cruel father, thou art the cause of my death." Then Shaw left the room and went into the street, and when the officious Morrison asked the girl, "What was the matter?" she said, "My father had stabbed her, she nodded her head and expired."

Just then Shaw returned, and when he beheld his daughter lying dead his anguish seemed uncontrollable. But the astute officers believed he was over-acting it. They had made up their minds to appear in public he would be convicted and sentenced to death, the enormity of his crime. On a cold November morning in 1721, he stepped upon the scaffold at Leith Walk, and, after saying that he was innocent of bloodshed, was duly executed, and his body was left in chains to the winds and the rains.

For several weeks Morrison had an audience whenever he condescended to talk. Novices came to look upon himself as a public benefactor for having been so largely instrumental in bringing that hideous malefactor to justice. Then a new tenant moved into the other side of the house, the side formerly occupied by the Shaws, and the wife of the new tenant being an industrious woman, she proceeded to give the house a thorough cleaning. While thus engaged she saw a piece of paper protruding from a crevice in the door just below the mantel. She drew it forth, and when she had read it she ran screaming to the authorities. For the paper showed that justice was a murderer.

The paper was a note written by Catherine Shaw, and addressed to her father. In it she expressed her determination to end her life, but said that he was responsible. "My death," she said, "all lay in your charge. When you read this consider yourself the inhuman wretch who plunged the knife into the bosom of the unhappy Catherine Shaw."

And the judges and lawyers and sheriffs and other functionaries who had sent the unfortunate man to a disgraceful death going together to justice that he was entitled to Christian burial and a flag over his grave.

This case is celebrated in legal annals and has been quoted a thousand times in arguments against circumstantial evidence.

"His body was left in chains to the winds and the rains."

For Justice had made a terrible blunder, and was doing what she could to remedy things. It wasn't much, and William Shaw was too dead to appreciate it.

Shaw was a quiet, industrious, God-fearing man who occupied one side of a double house in Edinburgh. His daughter Catherine being his housekeeper. She was a beautiful girl, who had many suitors, and with a person who had that distinguished many beautiful girls since the world was new she chose as her favorite a man who was unworthy. He was fond of holding high wassail with reckless companions, he looked upon honest toil as a nuisance, and there were many stories concerning his criminal exploits. Catherine had winning smiles for this undesirable citizen, but she had nothing but frowns for a certain Aleck Graham who wanted to marry her. She had that his bosom ached for her. Aleck was all a young man should be. He worked like Sam Hill and saved his money, and already owned considerable property. He had no bad habits and he was handsome and agreeable. Many a damsel longed to be his bride, but he yearned for Catherine and Catherine yearned for her black sheep.

It is not strange that William Shaw was grieved and aggravated. Any safe and sane parent would be incensed over such a condition of affairs. Many and many a time he talked to Catherine, pleading and arguing with her, trying to induce her to appreciate the merits of Graham, and to turn the other man down. Neither is it strange if he lost his temper once in a while, when the girl stubbornly protested that she'd marry the man of her choice or die an old maid.

CHICAGO, Aug. 2.—President T. M. Chivington of the American association today suspended Manager Clark of the Milwaukee club, pending an investigation of the charge that he called Owner Cantillon of the Minneapolis team obscene names in yesterday's game.

CHARLESTON, W. Va., Aug. 2.—All the locals of the United Mine Workers on Cabin Creek and Coal River except the one at Ohley today have ratified the agreement in settlement of the coal miners' strike.

Foreign Markets

New York Stocks.

NEW YORK, Aug. 2.—The stock market opened dull and heavy. 11 a. m.—While no real weakness was apparent the market continued dull during the first hour. Traders were of the opinion very little bullish interest was necessary to start a substantial advance. The stock market was apparently unaffected by advances in corn due to continued lack of rain in the northwest. Railroads were conspicuous in the small volume of early trading. Heaviness in Southern Pacific was attributed to the rumor that announcement of the price of the certificates might be made on Monday and the figure would not exceed $8. The stock market closed dull.

Chicago Grain Review

CHICAGO, Aug. 2.—Heavy trading in corn that continued until the market closed was the feature of the grain market today. With the weather may showing no trace of rain over the corn belt in the last 24 hours and no moisture in sight, prices continued to mount and at the close September was 1 1/2c above last night's closing and December up 1 1/2c on yesterday's closing figure. New traders entered the pit today and bulled the market while some of the pit leaders were taking profits. There was a general tendency, however, to hold on. Sales for the short session today totally 90,000 bushels. Cash corn went over the 70c mark. Wheat was higher, partly because of the strength in corn and partly because of high prices in the southwest and unfavorable crop news from Russia. Starting with an advance of 1 1/2c the market moved up 3/4c to 1/2c before closing. Oats was higher in sympathy with wheat and at the close today prices were 3/4c to 1/2c higher than at yesterday's close. Provisions were easier with a weak hog market.

Watching The Scoreboard

It's a tight race for the Cardinals to stay in last place for Cincinnati manages to lose about as many as Huggins' men. The Reds pulled six errors in the field against the Phillies, while Alexander was pitching one of his good games.

Boston exploded the Cardinals' recruit pitcher Doak by driving in eight runs while Hess held St. Louis to two hits.

It rested with Mathewson to stop the Cubs and he did it, holding them to four hits. Fletcher drove out four hits, one a double, in five times at bat.

J. Miller and Will scored the three runs that beat the Dodgers in the ten inning tussle. Both scored on Wilson's home run in the fourth and Miller scored the winning run after he had doubled in the tenth.

The Cleveland Naps gained another full game on the Athletics yesterday and are now seven games behind.

Nick Culp held the Red Sox to five hits and Speaker hit safely twice, and Shell drew the other one, but in the meantime the Naps hammered Leonard for six runs.

Chief Bender struck the bums against St. Louis. The Browns bunched hits off the chief in the sixth inning. Collins and Barry helped them out with wild throws and four runs came across.

Every man in the Tiger lineup with the exception of High hit safely in using up three Washington pitchers.

TO PLAY WEST SALEM

The Majestic baseball club will play the West Salem city team at West Salem tomorrow afternoon. A good game is expected since the teams are evenly matched. Sours or Wojahn will throw for the Majestics. Both are new pitchers.

RUMOR MANY TRADES

CHICAGO, Aug. 2.—Manager Joe Tinker of the Cincinnati Reds, who was in Kansas City on account of illness of his wife, hobnobbed with Manager McGraw of the Giants and Managers Evers of the Cubs today, giving rise to rumors of no less than a dozen trades.

MILWAUKEE FIGHTS DUTY ON BANANAS

MILWAUKEE, Wis., Aug. 2.—Fruit dealers in Milwaukee have been conducting a vigorous campaign against the tariff of 10 cents 100 pounds which congress proposes to place on bananas. Many dealers have sent private letters to Wisconsin congressmen urging them to oppose the measure. The Milwaukee Produce and Fruit exchange sent a set of resolutions to President Wilson and many congressmen. Independent dealers sent a petition signed by more than 100 persons to each senator and representative asking them to defeat the proposed bill.
